44 What sort of book is 'Different'?

Different by G. H. Malleson

At the age of 13, Mark Fry is sure that he's different from other children, but, to everyone who knows him, there's nothing extraordinary about him.

He lives in Whitby, near the sea, in a three-bedroomed house that's the same as the other houses in the street, with his parents, a hamster and a dog called Tam. His father works in a local bank, his mother's a nurse and his sister — a journalist — now lives in London, where she shares a flat with another girl.

So why does he think he's different? He laughs at the same things as his friends, he likes the same games… But, at school, he sometimes knows things before he reads about them. This frightens him, and he never talks about it with his friends or his parents.

Then one winter evening, he takes Tam for a walk on the beach. There's no one there except a strange little girl with silver hair who says, "Hello Mark. You don't know me, but I know you."
