Watches – The New Generation

A watch used to be something that everyone wanted. But fewer young people wear watches these days – after all, what's the point of having a watch when your smartphone can do the job? However, a new generation of watches – connected watches or smartwatches – is going to change everything. You can take photos with them, receive phone calls, check on your fitness, and that's not all! Too expensive? Not any more. Take a look at the new SmartTime Black (smarttime4u.com) from China. It does everything that its competitors do, but for half the price! What's more, it looks really great on your wrist. You won't find it in the shops; it's only available online from the company website and, if you buy one before 31st December, you get 10% off!

This is not just an article, it is also an advertisement for ……

Helena Peters
30 June at 8:52 pm

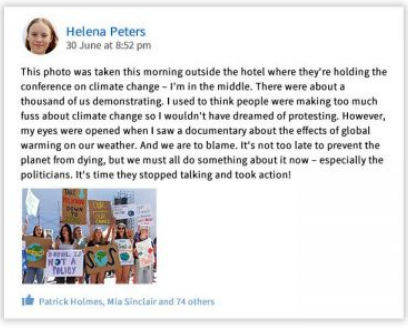

This photo was taken this morning outside the hotel where they're holding the conference on climate change – I'm in the middle. There were about a thousand of us demonstrating. I used to think people were making too much fuss about climate change so I wouldn't have dreamed of protesting. However, my eyes were opened when I saw a documentary about the effects of global warming on our weather. And we are to blame. It's not too late to prevent the planet from dying, but we must all do something about it now – especially the politicians. It's time they stopped talking and took action!
