A modern swimming pool at last?

One of our old students, Robert Delamere, died recently. He loved the school very much and left us some money, but on the condition that the money is used to modernise the swimming pool. Unfortunately this is going to be more expensive than Mr Delamere thought... and we need £2,000 more.

How it will look.

So, we're going to hold a Summer Fair on 15th June, where we can sell things. We're asking you to help too – students and parents – not with money but with anything that you don't need any more and that we can sell: clothes, books, ornaments...

The best thing is for you to bring me the things at school. But if they're too big, call me and someone will come and get them.

Thanks a lot.

According to information in the article, we know that

Harriet doesn't want people to give her things that are too big

Harriet can accept any gifts at all, including money

the objects that the school will sell at the Summer Fair will be quite small

Harriet is not only asking for clothes, books and ornaments ✓

It's a tradition!

Britain has some strange traditions, some of them dating back to Roman times. One of the strangest is the annual cheese-rolling competition at Cooper's Hill in Gloucestershire. It began about 600 years ago – but no one really knows why – and takes place on the first Monday in May.

A previous winner of the competition.

Someone pushes a large round cheese off the top of Cooper's Hill and the competitors run after it. The object is to catch the cheese before it reaches the bottom of the hill (about 200 metres), but no one ever does because the cheese goes too fast. The winner is therefore the first person to get to the bottom of the hill (on their feet or not!), and the prize is the cheese. The competition can be dangerous but, as one competitor said, "Every year, people fall and hurt themselves, but we must keep the cheese-rolling tradition. And where's the fun if there's no risk?"
