A mistake that made a million

Pattie Barnes is one of about a dozen teenage millionaires in Britain. Almost all the others became rich through the internet but Pattie makes her money from her chocolate cookies. You can buy them in nearly every supermarket in Britain. "It all happened by accident," says Pattie.

"One Sunday last year, I was a bit bored and I decided to make some chocolate cookies. I often made them and I always used the same recipe - I got it from my grandma. But this particular day, while I was making them, I was also talking to my boyfriend on the phone, and I made a mistake. When I realised, at first I wanted to start again but I didn't have enough chocolate, so I thought, 'perhaps they'll be OK,' and I put them in the oven. And, when I tasted one... it was absolutely delicious! My friends agreed and... well, that's how it all started. I left school and, with my parents' help, I started a business." What was the mistake?
