My visit to Europe's biggest gaming festival

Posted by Sophie, today at 7:35pm

Last week my friends and I went to Gamescon in Cologne, Germany. It's an annual gaming festival where you can play your favourite video games, try out new ones, take part in competitions and cosplay!

We dressed up as characters from World of Warcraft and visited the cosplay village. For those of you who don't know, cosplay is when people dress up and act like characters from video games, comics, TV series and films.

We made friends with other teenagers from around Europe who were cosplaying too! I also tried a new game called Stranded: Alien Dawn. It's a game where some people have crash-landed on an alien planet. You have to build a home and find food for them, as well as protect them from the aliens!

It was an amazing festival and I definitely recommend it!

That's me on the right with my friend Ruby

- Sophie's experience acting in a sci-fi film
- a European video games festival ✓
- a fancy dress party the writer recently attended
- a trip to a German village

An extract from a film script

WATSON: But Holmes, Eleanor Grey couldn't possibly have murdered Sir Alec Blackmore! She was on stage, singing at the Opera House in Covent Garden when her husband was stabbed to death in their Mayfair mansion.

HOLMES: Was she now? I wonder…

WATSON: What are you suggesting? Hundreds of people in the audience saw her. They said she'd never sung better, especially in Act II.

HOLMES: I put it to you, my dear Watson, that Eleanor Grey slipped away during the interval, and made her way across town to carry out her diabolical plan.

WATSON: Oh come now, Holmes, you know London better than anyone. Even on horseback it would be impossible to get to Mayfair then back to Covent Garden in under forty minutes – and the interval was only 20 minutes long.

HOLMES: She had all the time she needed. She had a helper, you see.

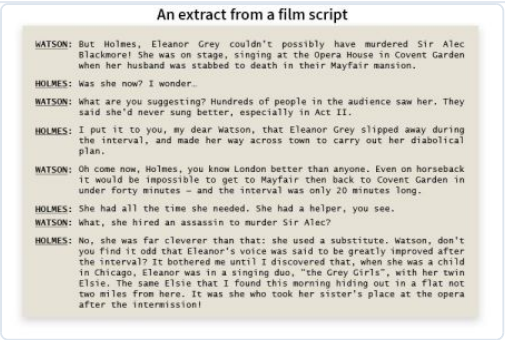

WATSON: What, she hired an assassin to murder Sir Alec?

HOLMES: No, she was far cleverer than that: she used a substitute. Watson, don't you find it odd that Eleanor's voice was said to be greatly improved after the interval? It bothered me until I discovered that, when she was a child in Chicago, Eleanor was in a singing duo, "the Grey Girls", with her twin Elsie. The same Elsie that I found this morning hiding out in a flat not two miles from here. It was she who took her sister's place at the opera after the intermission!

Holmes and Watson are investigating ..... .

- the murder of an opera singer
- a death in Mayfair ✓
- a killing in Covent Garden
- Sir Alec Blackmore's crimes
