An extract from a film script

EMILY: This is your house? But it's huge! I thought there were only three of you: your parents and yourself.
 NICK: Yes, but Mr and Mrs Corvan live here too.
 EMILY: Oh, so there are two flats in the building.
 NICK: No. The Corvans take care of us – you know: cooking, cleaning, shopping...
 EMILY: You mean like... servants?
 NICK: (laughing) I suppose so, but they've been with us for so long, they feel like part of the family. And they come with us when we go to the castle in the summer.
 EMILY: Did you say "castle"?
 NICK: It belonged to my grandfather. When he died, Dad's brother Paul inherited the family home and the farm, and Dad got the London house and the castle in Scotland. (Emily is speechless.) It's only a small one.
 EMILY: Why don't you ever talk about this at school?
 NICK: Look, if people know you're rich, you're never sure if they want to be friends because they really like you, or because they're only interested in your money.
