What would be a suitable title for this book?

"I've found another one!" shouted Jake, the new volunteer. "It was underneath the other two. He or she must have been buried some time before the others."
 "She!" said Petra, coming over and examining the bones. She was only in her first year of studying forensic science, but already knew a few things.
 "Now that's odd," said Jake, removing a diamond ring from one of the skeleton's fingers.
 "What's odd about it?" said Petra. "We've found bits of jewellery before."
 "But not like this, surely? This is a cut diamond. I'm sure the Romans didn't know how to do that," said Jake.
 "Let me look," said Maria, joining them. "Oh!" she exclaimed. "It's just like Gemma's engagement ring."
 "Who's Gemma?" asked Jake.
 "She helped out last year," said Maria. "But she left without a word and we haven't heard from her since."
 "She must have dropped it," suggested Petra.
 "No, she would have said something," said Maria. Then she suddenly exclaimed, "Oh no! It can't be..."
 Jake knew what Maria was thinking. "No, of course not!" he said. "This woman was buried over 2,000 years ago."
