NICK: Yes, but Mr and Mrs Corvan live here too.

EMILY: Oh, so there are two flats in the building.

NICK: No. The Corvans take care of us – you know: cooking, cleaning, shopping...

EMILY: You mean like... servants?

NICK: (laughing) I suppose so, but they've been with us for so long, they feel like part of the family. And they come with us when we go to the castle in the summer.

EMILY: Did you say "castle"?

NICK: It belonged to my grandfather. When he died, Dad's brother Paul inherited the family home and the farm, and Dad got the London house and the castle in Scotland. (Emily is speechless.) It's only a small one.

EMILY: Why don't you ever talk about this at school?

NICK: Look, if people know you're rich, you're never sure if they want to be friends because they really like you, or because they're only interested in your money.

Hello!

Well, we've done it! It's taken over six months but finally, thanks to you and many others, we now have enough money to rebuild Burrington Animal Hospital.

You will remember that dreadful August night when the fire broke out. Fire officers managed to carry all the animals to safety, but almost nothing was left of the building. An investigation concluded that the fire was accidental and the result of an electrical fault.

The insurance money will cover the basic cost of rebuilding, but we thought this was an opportunity to have a hospital with the very latest equipment, so we decided to ask for help from the local community, and the response has been amazing. The £20,000 that we have raised will make this one of the best-equipped animal hospitals in the country.

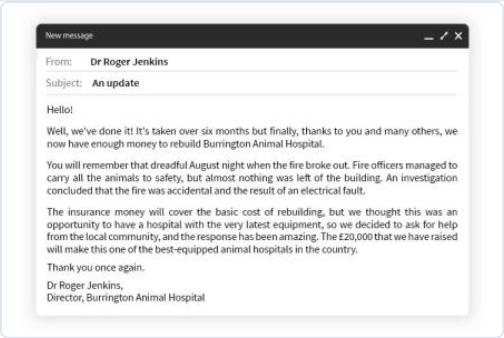

Thank you once again.

Dr Jenkins is sending this email to ... .

- the person who gave the hospital £20,000
